Weak Kidneys Make Weak Bodies.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Pains of Norway People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ills. No need to take the statement of some one living far away as evidence.

Here's a case right in this locality. Mrs. George Thayer, Pleasant St., South Paris, Me., says: "I first used Doan's Kidney Pills a short time ago and I can say that they helped me a great deal. My kidneys troubled me for quite a while and I was so favorably impressed with what I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box. I am well pleased with the results of their use and consequently have no hesitation in recommending them to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

Wonderlust.

First Version.

The bird songs of the summer time

Cher not my heart to-day,

While I dwell my mind on other things,

Where once I rode o'er grassy plains

And beneath the stars tarried;

Rolling in the cozy tarquany;

The thrill of the night's love,

As always in the lead,

In striving for a chance to rove,

Or checking mad attempts.

Then drink long life to the bounding heart

Of the cowboy of the West,

Three times three for my pony brave,

Seven sixteens rope, gee whizz!

And don't forget my four strand pet,

Seven sixteens rope, gee whizz!

Now cinch yer saddles tight, my boys;

Reef up the bir corral;

At don't think you've time to wink

At old Bill Whiskers' gal.

Now mind your brand, you know you can,

Tell it at a gallop, you can,

And throw your rope with heart and hope,

It's just a song and dance.

They drink long life to the bounding heart

Of the cowboy of the West;

Three rousin' cheers for 'is fem'ine pard,

And three times three for my pony brave,

Who knows the roundup hid;

And don't forget my four strand pet;

Oh! hard twist rope, Gee whizz!

THE DREAMER.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Don'ts for the Young Girl.

Don't strain your hair back from the face. It will mean baldness on the temples long before you are ready for it.

Don't use hot irons on the hair any more than you must. To ruin hair in youth will cause lasting regret. School girls look better with hair that is not too much frizzed.

Don't insist upon wearing your hair in ways that are too old for you. You will be sorry later.

Don't think you know much better than your mother whether certain styles are becoming. Many a girl ruins her looks by wearing huge bows in her hair or her hair at a ridiculous angle which she thinks fashionable.

Don't get into the habit of stooping. It will ruin your figure and may seriously injure your health. It is not pleasant to be nagged at for stooping, but bear in mind that stooping is a habit that is not for the future.

Don't, as soon as you put on corsets, start to pull them in. There is nothing uglier than a young girl with a made looking figure. Besides being bad style it is bad for the health and complexion.

Don't ruin your complexion by rock less exposure. On the other hand, do not begin to tinker with it when young. Beyond perfect cleanliness young girls should let their skin alone save for cause.

Don't get into the habit of grinning, twisting, or sneezing, standing on one hip or raising the shoulders. You are at a formative age and such habits once formed mean ruined looks, says Portland Express.

Don't overdress. There is a growing tendency to keep young girls in simple clothes until they are almost ready to come out. A girl who has never not know it, never looks so smart in clothes too old for her as she does in simple youthful cuts and materials.

Don't let your heels run down. Besides being slovenly it is harmful to the spine and is apt to give a crooked walk or twisted figure.

A Trip in the West.

Editor ADVERTISER, as you will see I am now in Southern California and while rustiating amongst the Orange groves and flowers, I will try and write a few short sketches of my last summer vacation trips.

On Friday morning, April 30th, I boarded the train for Los Angeles, S. D. for a 600 mile ride to the west and northwest, at Westington, S. D. I visited over Sunday with my nephew, S. F. Andrews, a son of the Rev. Owen Andrews who was born in Lovell. On Monday morning I again took the train and continued my journey. At Pier, the state capital we cross the Missouri river. Pier and Chamberlin, the railroads halted more than 20 years ago, and have been waiting all these years for the opening up of the 210,000 square miles of Indian lands, that lay between the Missouri river and the Black Hills section of South Dakota. That barrier was removed about three years ago, and now this vast tract of land is being taken up by the hardy pioneers.

From Pier to Rapid City is about 200 miles mostly rolling prairie, with a rich soil and but little natural timber. At Chadron, Neb., I stayed over night and the next morning proceeded to Douglas, Wyo., the western end of my trip.

Douglas is a beautiful city of about 2,000 population located on the north bank of one of the forks of the Platte river. Here my friends met me, and the next morning took me to their home ranch 20 miles away. Here I found my cousin, Bessie Andrews (now at Lovell, Center almost 80 years ago and a daughter of Uncle Isaac Andrews, the first white child born in Lovell) and her husband, Andrew Cooper, remarkably hale and hearty for people of their age. Their son, the Hon. L. L. Cooper, who has served three terms in the Wyoming legislature of which he was Speaker of the House one term, and his wife, live near them and is secretary and manager of a large stock ranch on which they live.

This ranch consists of some 20,000 acres of deeded and leased land and they have a fine herd of between four and five hundred head of thoroughbred Hereford cattle mostly cows and heifers. Three miles away from Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilcox have a fine cattle ranch. Mrs. Wilcox is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper. Three miles away upon another creek James Andrews and his wife are living upon another ranch. Here a son of Isaac Andrews, a former Lovell boy, they all live in large comfortable log houses.

This is an ideal stock country for those who control the streams of water. The bottom lands are irrigated, and produce fine crops of grain and alfalfa hay, while the adjoining hills afford rich pasturage all the year round. To many, this ranch life would seem a lonely life, but to Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, a long and happy married life has brought them many blessings and now in the sunset of their lives, surrounded by their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, they are awaiting with hope and patience, the Master's call.

Wyoming is big in acreage, but small in population. Its great wealth is in its mines and stock ranges. I was told that it stands first in the production of wool and sheep, of any state in the Union. Most of the country that I saw was sheep country. The sheep are kept in bands of about 3,000 each, and a man with a covered wagon and a few dogs, and when the feed gets short in one locality, changes to another, always having in view a convenient water hole or creek to quench the thirst of his bleating herd.

Back of the Cooper ranch are the foot hills which lead back to the mountains, and I think about 20 miles away stands Chyane Peak which raises its lofty peak to a height of about 10,000 feet. The foot hills contain many fine groves of hard pine timber. In company with Lyman Cooper, I visited a saw mill in the hills and while there, dined on a subsantial meal, a part of which consisted of mountain trout, some of them of the rainbow species.

The high altitude, the pine timber and the pure air, make this part of Wyoming an ideal health country. I spent about two weeks there and enjoyed my visit very much indeed. If my epistle escapes the Editor's waste basket, my next will be about my experience in the famous Black Hills country of South Dakota and my return to Huxley, my starting point.

Yours Truly,

JOSEPH ANDREWS.

Universalist Notes.

The Universalist Sunday school and their friends enjoyed an Xmas tree with exercises by the children, Friday evening. Before time for the exercises all the children and their parents participated in a Christmas tree supper in the banquet room of the church. The tree was in the main audience room, in fact there were two trees, one on each side of the altar. Both were well loaded with gifts for the children and members of the school, which with tasty decorations made the audience room a bower of beauty. A short program of singing and recitations was followed by the appearance of Santa Claus and the distribution of gifts, and happy childhood was made happier still as they clasped in their hands the precious tokens of love and good will which came to them.

Sunday evening there was a Christmas tree concert in the same church by the Sunday school assisted by the choir. The storm which was not severe here was sufficiently threatening to keep some of the children and some of the adults at home, but an excellent concert was enjoyed by those who were present. The recitations by the children were especially enjoyable. The singing was excellent, and all who were present were well paid for coming.

Rev. J. H. Little, the pastor of the church, was called to Rowe's Church, Turner, Christmas day, to attend the wedding of Mrs. Lillian Johnson's oldest daughter, Olive Hayden, to Harold Coburn Bradford, youngest son of Wm. E. Bradford, town treasurer of Turner. The house was decorated with evergreen and white, and in room where the ceremony was performed an evergreen arch was arranged in one corner with a large marriage bell suspended from the center. The double ring service was used. Members of both families with a few personal friends were present. Mr. Bradford and his bride are well known in Turner and vicinity and are highly respected by a large circle of acquaintances and friends. Mr. Bradford has a position at Rumford where they will make their home.

Edwin C. Rowe.

E. C. Rowe passed away, Monday evening, about six o'clock, and the funeral service will be at the house, Thursday, at 2 p. m., attended by Rev. F. E. Barton and Rev. J. H. Little.

Some weeks ago Mr. Rowe was operated upon for appendicitis and seemed getting along well until a few days ago his condition became critical and a second operation was necessary to relieve him. Following this he survived only three days. For some three years Mr. Rowe has been in failing health. Last summer, after a long and serious illness, his wife died. L. L. Carver, who has long been with Mr. Rowe as clerk in his store, died also an inmate of his home, faithfully cared for the business and been constant in his attention to both Mr. and Mrs. Rowe during their sickness. Mr. Rowe leaves no children.

He was born in Bethel, April 11, 1848. His father was the late Caleb Rowe. His early life was spent in Bethel on the farm and in school at Gould Academy.

In 1870 he entered the store of his brother, Cayton Rowe, as a clerk, and formed a co-partnership with him three years later. Some years after he erected a large store near Bethel Common and went into business for himself which he has since continued.

WEST PARIS.

Dunham-Brown.

A good number of girls and friends were at the station, Saturday morning to meet the incoming of the western bound train and greet with the rice and corn feed shower welcome given the newly married couple, Will F. Dunham and Jennie M. Brown, who were made one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Robertson in South Paris, at 7 o'clock, Christmas Eve.

Mrs. Robertson is a very dear and intimate friend of the bride and it was through a very urgent invitation from her that the wedding ceremony should take place in her home.

The parlor was decorated befitting the Yuletide season with Christmas trees which were laden with gifts for the little daughter, Miriam Robertson, with a white wedding bell suspended over them. Holly sprays, cut flower bouquets and red butterflies, were on the lace draped table over the room.

The bride was simply gowned in white and wore white pinks. The wedding march from Lohengrin, was played by Mrs. Robertson. The double ring service was performed by Rev. F. E. Barton of Fairfield, who was also a particular friend of the bride's family.

A dainty lunch of wedding cakes, fancy crackers, fruit, nuts and barlequin cream was served after the ceremony.

Only a few of the relatives invited were able to be present. Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Brown of Portland, a nephew of the bride, and Alice Dunham, youngest daughter of the groom. Mr. Dunham is a former resident of West Paris, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Dunham of that place. He has a position in the works of the General Electric Co. in Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Dunham is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Brown, and has always lived here with her parents. She is well known and highly esteemed.

She has been prominent in all public work in the Universalist church of which she is a member, the W. C. T. U. and all other affairs that needed or asked her assistance. She has much natural talent, both musical and literary. She has been news paper correspondent for several weeks past for a number of years. She has held the office of County Secretary of the W. C. T. U., and been State Superintendent of Sailors and Lumbermen.

They received many gifts and remembrances especially in silver and china. The Lucky Leaf Club of which she was a directing member, gave her a pretty silver soup ladle, and the Universalist Society and friends, a gold ring with a tourmaline stone setting from Mr. Mica.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunham ate their Christmas dinner with Mr. Dunham's parents, remaining in the place until Tuesday morning, when they went to their future home in West Lynn, Mass. They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Could Not Stop Sneezing.
Gladys Grover was visiting at Summer Grove, Sunday, and was taken sneezing and couldn't stop. The physician was called and wanted her to go to the hospital at once but as he stopped the sneezing was in hopes she would be all right and went away. She was taken to the home of Paris Paige and that night began sneezing again, so the doctor stayed with her most of the night. Monday Dr. B. F. Bradbury of Norway was sent for and performed an operation but it seems it did no good for at last reports she was sneezing again. Mrs. Amelia Grover came from Massachusetts, Monday night, to care for her.

Two Deaths.

Mrs. Parris Paige was called to Rumford, Friday, by the death of her youngest brother, Daniel A. Lebrock. He slipped on the ice and fell, striking on the back of his head, which hurt him, and causing him to have a spinal trouble that caused his death. His remains were brought to his sister's, Mrs. Lizzie Jewett's of Biddeford, and the funeral took place there Sunday. He was laid at rest in the cemetery at Biddeford near his mother. He leaves a wife, two children, an aged father, two brothers and five sisters to mourn their loss.

Edna, wife of Harry Brown, passed away Thursday evening. She has been sick with typhoid fever for a long time and had been very sick, but for a few days had seemed to be on the gain until nearly a week before she died, when she grew suddenly worse and for a few days it didn't seem she could live an hour. The funeral was on Xmas day and was very sad for the community. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. She left a nice home and everything heart could wish for. She leaves a husband, two sons, father, mother and one sister beside many friends to mourn their loss.

The teachers are on the sick list so there will be no school for a week.

The Christmas tree festival of the South Parish Sunday school, on Friday evening, 24 inst., was a delightful affair, and gave old and young much pleasure. The program of exercises was under direction of pastor-superintendent Sias. Children belonging to the Sunday school, the village public school, and the Mutiny district school, participated by recitations as follows: Annie Abbott, Hazel York, Bron Abbott, Raymond Saunders, Elinor Saunders, Gladys Adams, Rita Merrill, Margaret Sias, Orpha Sias, Elsie Hapgood and Alice Kneeland. The superintendent made an appropriate address, alluding to the festivals of the ancient people, held in observance of the winter solstice and the return of the sun from its southern limit. The identity of this period with the birth time of Jesus caused its adoption by the early Christians in token of that event, from which originated the Christmas celebration of later times.

"Public Library," a gold-lettered overhead sign hitched to a tree owned by Wm. C. Leavitt and the town to show where to find the library. The lettering is all right but the hanging is something ridiculous. It is a disgrace to the tree, sidewalk and town.

The Monday after Christmas the stores showed the results of the Christmas trade. Most of them have a decidedly bare appearance compared with the large stock of two weeks ago. There are plenty of new holiday goods for New Year's trade, and notice the "mark downs" in the advertising columns.
Lovell I. Churchill of Paris has bought a pair of matched Hereford calves of H. Arthur Robbins. They were the blue ribbon winners at the last cattle fair last fall. They are good looking and nicely matched. Lovell may be a dozen years old, is a son of Almon Churchill, and he felt pretty proud driving the calves through the villages. He had the blue ribbon in his pocket.

Holden-Hayden.
We have received the wedding notice of Miss Durell Hayden, a former Norway girl, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. Clara Hayden of Norway and the daughter of Alma Pendexter and Charles Hayden of Holden. She received beautiful presents from her relatives in Haverhill, Manchester, Mass., Norway and Rochester, N. Y. We copy the following from a Rochester paper:
At First Baptist church at 7 o'clock the marriage of Miss Durell Pendexter Hayden, daughter of Mrs. Alma Pendexter Hayden, and niece of Hugh Pendexter, to Jared Howard Holden, was solemnized. Rev. James T. Dickinson, D. D., officiating.
The church was attractively decorated with palms and the bride wore a becoming traveling gown, with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and maiden hair. She was attended by Emily O'Keefe, as maid of honor, and the best man was Montgomery Van Vleet.
After the ceremony a dinner was served at the Hotel Rochester with the decorations in pink. The table was covered with pink roses and lighted by candles with dainty shades in the same coloring. Mrs. Holden has been a successful teacher of music and manual training in the Industrial School for several years and a great favorite with the children. Many gifts from her small students were showered upon the bride as well as from the managers of the institution and her friends and relatives.
Mrs. Holden comes from Revolution, an ancestry and is a descendant of the Haydens of Cambridge and the Sanborns of Haverhill. She has also been successful in literary work and is an eloquent and possesses a fine contralto voice.
Mr. Holden is one of the engineering staff of the Stromberg-Carlson Company, and has proven himself a very efficient and valuable man to the firm with which he is connected. Among a number of pre-nuptial entertainments given for the bride were the following: Theater party by Mrs. Hugh Pendexter; shower by Mrs. John Hayden; luncheon at bride's Sunday School class; luncheon shower by Emily O'Keefe. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holden will be at home at 108 Meigs street.

Columbus Richardson.
Columbus Richardson died in Norway, Saturday, Dec. 25th, of pneumonia after a short illness.
Mr. Richardson was born in Greenwood, Oct. 20th, 1834, but had lived in Norway the most of his life. He attended school in Greenwood. He was a farmer and a shoemaker. He was a soldier and served in Company H, 23d Maine, from Sept. 29, 1862, to July 15, 1863, when the regiment was mustered out. He was a member of Harry Russell Post, No. 54, G. A. R., and was recently elected Commander of the Post for the ensuing year.
In politics Mr. Richardson was a Republican and in religious associations a Universalist.
Oct. 19th, 1862, he married Helen Shackley and they had one son, F. H. S. Richardson, who is a shoemaker and lives in Auburn. He married for his second wife, Lizzie E. Libby, Sept. 30, 1877, who survives him and another son, Arthur L. Richardson, who is a shoemaker and lives in Norway.
The funeral was from the Universalist church, Monday, Dec. 27th, at 2 o'clock p. m., his pastor, Rev. M. C. Ward being the attending clergyman, who spoke words of comfort and consolation to the mourning relatives and friends. There were floral offerings that mutely spoke of esteem for the departed one.

Busy Week at Central Park.
Yule tide found the Central Park manager, and the good time commenced Friday evening, with moonlight skating to good music, while motion pictures were projected upon the screen while the merry whirl was in progress. Christmas afternoon the rink was opened and a skating carnival given, to which a large number embraced the opportunity of enjoying their favorite sport by sunlight.
In the evening, a special motion picture and illustrated song program was offered, and this drew out a good holiday crowd. Three reels of excellent subjects were shown. The features were, "The School of Gymnastics," a film of action showing a training ship's crew put through a course of stunts; "The Pretty Guardian," a setting where a white robed spectre figured conspicuously in a love affair; "The Red Domino," a realistic episode in the affairs of a foreign police and the theme of attending evils invaded the home of a high rank; "For Daddy's Sake," a touching home picture where a young child and violin proved the salvation of a concerned; "Football Wishes" was a gem bubbling over with ludicrous situations simply because an empty headed youth was given a sour lemon by a female both physically and mentally his superior. His many attempts at self destruction and failures to meet the required end, kept the spectators in an uproar and kept the gossamer in the foolhead would try next.

Mrs. Leon Yeaton rendered satisfaction to the illustrated songs, "Blue Feather" and "Sometime, Somewhere."
Special decorations, undoubtedly the work of Mrs. Yeaton, Mrs. Bassett and Lillian York, were noticeable. Each of the twenty incandescent border lights were inclosed in a green and red Christmas ball. Japanese parasols were suspended from the ceiling, and heavy maroon colored draperies embellished with glistening rosettes hung gracefully about the peacocks, the whole making a pretty effect. Dancing was billed to follow the pictures but so many desired to skate that the managers wisely decided to change and an enjoyable time on the little wheels followed until a late hour.
The usual roller skating party was given Monday with the Casino orchestra. Candidates just receiving their initiation were on the floor (oftentimes) but enjoyed the bumps even if not gracefully presented. There seems to be an influence which holds the beginner to the job in spite of falls and back-breaking contortions.

Friday evening another moonlight skating carnival is the drawing card, while pictures will be shown. Saturday evening feature pictures are promised and another opportunity will be given to "roll the rollers."

For the Sunday School.
Long years ago, we are told, people were visited with punishment in the flesh for their sins.
How many today stop to think that perhaps for our misdeeds we may be chastened by sickness or misfortune as these more fortunately placed people are punished for sin and disobedience?
It often seems as if this were the case when we see people doing wrong, living ungodly lives, carelessly and selfishly.
When affliction comes how many ask themselves: "How have I displeased God?" or "Is Heaven's wrath kindled against me?"
We would do well to pause occasionally in the race, when we come to a doubtful turn in the road, and ask ourselves: "Am I right? Not right, in the sense of worldly wisdom, but right according to Divine judgment were He here to direct our footsteps, leading all the way by His right hand."
To love one another is one of Heaven's direct commands. And we can we love one another truly without trying to know and help those whom we love and trying always to make our love for our fellow-beings manifest by truly good and kindly thoughts and deeds toward them?
A person, for illustration, may live near or distant he is just as truly our neighbor as if he lived next door so long as his aim is to do right and he is true to his convictions.
There is another command that accords with the one already stated, which is:
Be not forgetful to entertain strangers for some have entertained angels unaware.
This is a command too often lost sight of in this selfish generation, seeking vainly their own interests and their own happiness, regardless of the prodigal waste of good fellowship rightfully belonging to others as well.

There are those who have around them many friends and friends of many of them cannot stop to think of the loneliness and want of companionship of those less favored, and selfishly pass them by as if they were icebergs. On the contrary, the slightest ones are deserving the light, as icebergs. Reader, suppose God were displeased at this manifestation of disobedience, and for your spiritual good, "visited His wrath" upon such doings by taking from your nearest and dearest for such selfishness, or caused friends to turn against you?
Would you pause at this act of Providence and believe then that you were doing wrong in not being friendly and companionable with those who desired friendship?
Oh friends, beware! "It were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck" than that he should offend any that believe in His name.
Let us accept people for what they are, with courtesy and good will. Many persons are good and true, though not demonstrative in manner nor very aggressive. But, it is truly said: "Still waters run deepest;" so do not allow yourself to think that such are necessarily uninteresting nor unwilling to do their part, socially or otherwise, when once they are made to feel that you are friendly and desire their friendship in return.

Those who are strong in numbers should make advance in good will toward the weaker numbers. This feeling that we are far above another equally good is mostly of feminine origin, not so common in men. And dare any resist the pleading of Him who has said: "I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion."
Let us strive to be friendly toward one another, not snobbish and ill-bred in manner. Be good and true. Bear also in mind, a person may be a millionaire and not necessarily more a gentleman than if he had less cash and more brain. So let us seek wisdom and be wise, not following after evil pomp and vain glory, all of which perish with the using. Choose wisely, the right, today.

Woman Who Dares to Be Natural.
The frog who tried to swell himself to the dimensions of an ox burst. Keeping up with the procession, living on a scale as elaborate and expensive as these more fortunately placed people of life a veritable burden to thousands who might enjoy the comforts while foolishly trying to have the luxuries.
If Mrs. Jones gives a swell dinner to her friends you must imitate her and give one too, with an even more expensive menu, though you have to borrow the money to supply the viands or get them on credit.
Is the game worth the candle, even for the time that you are able to hold forth the silly pretension?
Why fret and fume about new clothes when the old will do just as well? Why have more dresses than you can wear and six trunks when one will suffice?
Don't be a slave of fashion. Assert your freedom. Be genuine, be yourself. The easiest way to be happy is to be natural.
To be natural requires both courage and common sense. If you insist on living sensibly you may be called "mean" and if you refuse to wear yourself out and worry yourself sick with all sorts of social whimsicalities and extravagances, you may be dubbed "eccentric." But go your way unheeding, dare to be singular. In the end the world will respect you for your display of individuality. Any dead fish can swim with the tide.
"To your own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day Thou canst not then be false to any man."

It requires a high quality of courage to have a decent self respect that can brave public criticism, the scorn and conventionalities of society, keep faith with inner convictions and remain all the time true to the best principles of a young womanhood.
Be free. Spread your pinions and soar aloft into the realms of light where you can look down on the follies, shams and insincerities of the glittering, gilded, hollow throng.
If you have been already caught in the snares of society's tinsel web, if you have allowed yourself to be harnessed to the chariot of custom, loaded down to the limit, groaning under its burden and imperiously driven by its stinging lash, you can free yourself by becoming natural and keeping your self-respect and dignity.
Don't try to duplicate your neighbor. Nature never makes a duplicate. One of us is enough. Don't worry over the fact that your neighbor has more baggage to lug around than you. Your neighbor gives you freedom for which you should be thankful.
Shake off the stamp of artificiality. Don't let yourself be tagged by conventionality.
Be yourself. Respect life more than things, and you will be happy and contented in the right of a noble womanhood.

Where is Dr. Cook? Never mind, he will be back in a week or two and announce to the world that "he has discovered the South pole." He never announces when he makes a discovery, just slips away as easily with no boom of guns or martial music.

Smokeless

Until science discovered a way to construct the Automatic Smokeless Device, and make it completely dependable, all oil heaters had one common great fault—smoke.

With the advent of the Automatic Smokeless Device, and its practical application to the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device) the smoke problem was successfully solved.

The Perfection Oil Heater is the only heater equipped with this which insures a steady, full-glowing heat, with the wick turned up as high as it will go, without a shred of smoke. Reverse the motion, turn the wick down—there's no odor. The smokeless device automatically locks and prevents the upward movement of the wick beyond the proper exposure. That is the secret. This splendid result gives leadership to the Perfection.

You may now have all the heat you want—when you want it—and where you want it—without the annoyance of smoke or odor. Brass front holds 4 quarts of oil, which permits a glowing heat for 9 hours. Brass wick tube—damper top—cool handle. Cleaned in a minute. The Perfection is beautifully finished in Nickel or Japan.

47th Anniversary.

My mother at this time thought of my father's portrait, and afraid of its being injured she determined to get it herself and bring it into the cellar. Without telling any one of her intention, she left the cellar and went up into the parlor. The portrait was hanging just over a sofa on which she stood to take in down. She had just reached the door opposite the sofa when a shell came crashing through the wall, demolishing the sofa on which she had so recently stood, as well as many other articles of furniture. She reached the cellar white and trembling, but with the portrait unhurt in her arms.

At one o'clock the cannonading suddenly ceased and for one hour we were at liberty to go above and see the damage that had been done. My mother's first efforts were directed toward getting a lunch, of which we were all sorely in need. With the aid of one of the frightened servants she succeeded in getting a fire and having some coffee made, and with this, together with some bread and ham, we had a plentiful repast.

What a scene met our eyes! Our pretty garden was strewn with cannon balls and pieces of broken shells, limbs knocked off the trees and the grape arbor a perfect wreck. The house had been damaged considerably, several large holes torn through it, both in front and back.

Gen. Lee read an order saying that the women and children must leave town, as he would destroy it with hot shot that night sooner than let it fall into the hands of the enemy who were crossing the river rapidly on pontons. They urged my mother to take her children and fly at once from the town.

The wildest confusion now reigned, the servants winging their hands and declaring they couldn't go without their "chests," which they managed to get somehow, and put upon their heads, but the gentlemen insisted so that we had only time to save our lives, that they would not even let my mother go back into the house to get her purse or a single valuable. So we started out, just as we were, my wrapping, I remember, was an old ironing blanket, with a large hole burnt in the middle. I never did find out whether aunt B.—ever got her clothes on, for she stalked ahead of us wrapped in a pure white counterpane, a tall, ghastly looking figure.

We left town by way of the old "plank road," batteries of Confederates on both sides. The ground was rough and broken up by the tramping soldiers and the heavy wagons and artillery that had passed over it, so that it was difficult to wade, and the sun was quite warm by this time and the snow was melting rapidly, the mud was simply indescribable.

I think the only vehicle we encountered was a dilapidated wagon, to which an old colored man had hitched a decrepit, but vicious looking mule, hoping to drive off from the wars, but lo! upon the steepest and most exposed place of a very high hill, that mule had halted, planting his forefeet firmly in the ground, whilst with his hind-legs he was displaying the usual agility of the mule species of kicking the spatterboard. No coaxing, cajoling, beating or "cussing" would induce him to budge one inch. The exasperated driver, after many efforts, exclaimed "to the Lord, Cas' biance, you thick head brute, if it t'waint for de valeration uv yer harness I'd let you get kilt right heab." Suddenly his countenance brightened and he said, "but I gwine to move yer now, 'cause I sees some corn coming!" A man with a bag of corn was passing just then and "Cas'biance's" attention directed toward it by the old driver, he unstiffened his forelegs and started after it in a brisk trot, dragging the broken wagon and his fate master, the rain of numerous blows on his hard-corned back.

All of our servants, except Caline, who was only seven years old, had taken some other direction. When we got about two miles from town we overtook many other refugees; some were camping by the way, and others pressing on, some to country houses which were hospitably thrown open to wanderers from home, and others to "Salem church," about three miles from Fredericksburg, where there was a large camp. Our destination was a house not far from "Salem church," which we now call the "Refugee House." Exhausted we reached the house by twilight, found there some friends who had been there some weeks, and who kindly took us into their room and gave us every attention.

And so great was our relief to feel that we had escaped from the horror of that day, that such small matters as having no milk and no coffee, our principal diet of corn bread, bacon and sorghum, seemed only slight troubles.

The next day we walked up to the church. All was bustle and confusion. I suppose there were several hundred refugees there. Some were cooking out side in genuine gypsy fashion, and those who were infirm or sick were trying to get some rest in the cold, bare church. The leafless trees, through which the winter wind sobbed mournfully, scattered gray smoke from the smoke of numerous fires, and the road, upon which passed constantly back and forth ambulances and wagons full of wounded soldiers, presented a gloomy and sad-denying spectacle.

To our great astonishment we beheld Aunt B. the queen of the group, giving orders right and left, her liveliness and self-importance in no degree abated, and being waited upon by all.

"We remained at the 'Refugee House' for three weeks, my mother in the meantime making efforts to get into town; each day she would walk almost to the outskirts, wading through mud knee deep, only to be refused by the sentries who could let no one pass."

"On the day after the battle my mother with Miss C., did succeed in reaching town and my brother and myself made up our minds we would go too, so followed at a respectful distance to keep from being sent back. We had to cross the battlefield, a horrible sight for our young eyes. My brother picked up a bayonet, lying by a dead man, which he afterwards found a very novel use for. Dead bodies piled up in every direction, the houses sacked and pillaged, and everything in the most horrible state. The Federals had done as much harm to the furniture and house as they could. One room was piled high, more than half-way to the ceiling with feathers from the beds ripped up. Every mirror was run through with a bayonet, one of the doors were locked, and the furniture nearly a broken up.

My mother went back to the 'Refugee House' that night and after several days there we went back to our old home. My mother, with no assistance but what we children could give, succeeded in clearing out the house and we took up our abode in one room, as we could barely find furniture for that.

A stove was found and fortunately before the shelling my mother had gotten a good supply of wood, which was in the cellar. That night about dark we heard a low tap on the window and my mother asking who was there found it was Beverly Brooks, a colored man, who had just heard she was in town and came with a loaf of bread and a pitcher of milk, and every night during the rest of that dreadful winter did he tap on the window and hand in a pitcher of milk and a loaf of bread. He had stayed in town during the shelling and had managed to keep his cow and all of his belongings. We three children would sit around the stove every night and toast our bread on the old bayonet brother had found on the battlefield. My mother, through the kindness of friends and through her own industry, managed to find food during in bed all day while she washed and ironed our clothes with her own hands, as she had no money to buy with, nor were there any stores in Fredericksburg from which she could have bought. After some weeks she succeeded in getting us more clothes, which was certainly more comfortable for us all.

In the spring, my mother, through the kindness of a friend, was enabled to go to Danville, Virginia, where we remained until after the war was over. To-day neat homes and pleasant gardens mark the spot of that awful carnage and the story of the battle will soon be a matter of history only, as those who took part in the great contest and survived it are rapidly being numbered with the dead.

HIRAM.
A Subscription for Santa.
We join in wishing all a Happy New Year and may it be more prosperous and happy than ever before. Santa Claus visited our neighborhood and made hearts glad with the gifts he brought. He visited Brookside Farm and left many useful presents, but is a wonder how he got in as every door and window was fastened and two roaring fires all night which made it pretty risky for a man of his size to enter the chimney.
But if you see him children with his garments tattered and burned let us know it quick and we will take up a subscription to get him a new suit for we shall want to see him again next Christmas Eve.
Aunt Jane Storer has been sick.
Ellsworth Danham has put a cupola on his barn.
Charlie Bryce has moved into John Cotton's little house.
Orman Spring received many guests at his house Christmas day.
Lizzie Clemons will teach the winter term in the Tripp district.
Melville Gould went to Auburn as a delegate to the Grange convention.
Mrs. Charles Howard, who married Frank Watson has moved to his home.
Charles Ridlon went to Standish, Saturday and purchased a span of black horses which weigh 2300. He bought also a nice sleigh.
The scholars from Hiram, who are attending school at Fryburg academy are: Euneta Allen, Marion Evans, Katie Wadsworth, Helen Marston, Erna and Tom Spring.
Richard Newbegin is building a new set of buildings on Hiram hill. He and his wife have gone to Haverhill, Mass., where he will work in the shoe shop this winter.
Calvin Clemons, who owns six as large oxen as there are in the State and the ones that took so many ribbons at the fairs last fall, is doing a large business logging on his Eastman lot.

PARIS HILL.
George M. Atwood and family spent Xmas with relatives at Dixfield.
Lottie Wing of Norway was a guest at H. P. Hammond's from Friday until Sunday night.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cummings spent Xmas with Mr. and Mrs. George Cummings at Mechanic Falls.
Mrs. Sadie (Hersey) Allen of Lincoln Centre made a very short visit with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hammond, last week. She was going to New Hampshire to visit and then meet her husband, C. C. Allen.
Austin P. Stearns has gone to Boston summoned there by the serious illness of his son, Seward P. Stearns, who has pneumonia. He has submitted to two surgical operations and is said to have been made more comfortable by them, but is critically ill.
Mrs. Helen (Hammond) Curtis and youngest son Harold visited relatives here Sunday and Monday. She and her husband, O. E. Curtis, and other two sons, who were at his mother's, Mrs. Ellen Curtis' at South Paris, returned to their home in Kennebunk, Tuesday.
A full family party observed Xmas day with Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hammond, Mrs. Ernest Hammond and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cole, Roy Hammond and Eugene Hammond from Island Pond, where he has been working for the past two months. He will have a vacation until Jan. 1st, when he will work at his old job as baggage master at Norway depot. They will be very glad to see him back at his old place.

W. P. Smith is taking an enforced vacation. He scalded one of his hands very badly.
The male quartette rendered some exceptionally fine music at the Congregational church last Sabbath and will again furnish music next Sunday, Jan. 2.
Harrington Plink, night operator at the central Tel. & Tel. office here, visited last week in South Paris. Harry Smith substituted at the office in Mr. Plink's absence.
One of the best Christmas concerts ever given here was enjoyed at the Congregational church, Christmas eve. The children never did better work. The church was beautifully decorated and the two trees were loaded with nice things. Percy Smith, who impersonated Santa Claus, did very finely and caused much merriment among the children, while he called off the names of the owners of the pretty things.

EAST OXFORD.
A number of scholars are sick and unable to attend school.
O. E. Barrows and family of South Paris took dinner at C. H. Flood's, Christmas day.
C. H. Flood and wife entertained their son, Clarence Flood, and wife and Charles Flood and lady over Sunday.
Christmas was well observed by dinner parties and trees. A stocking filled with "home-made presents" was enjoyed in the school, Friday afternoon. Clara May Noble had a tree unloaded Saturday afternoon, and Ida Greely had a tree in the evening, to which the Nobles were invited.

OXFORD.
Christmas Services.
Exercises appropriate to the commemoration of the birth of our Lord were held in the Congregational church on Christmas Eve.
Christmas is always a joyous time for the children, and in spite of the havoc that bad colds have made with several of the voices, they entered into the spirit of the occasion with the enthusiasm which is so natural to children. The church was tastefully decorated, the trees loaded with presents, and the children vied with each other in their quick response when their names were called.

Christmas, Percy Skillings, who was working for Charles Rowe of East Oxford, got into a mixup with some cattle which resulted in the breaking of his left thigh. Mr. Skillings was taken to the C. M. G. hospital for treatment.
Craigie Lodge, Knights of Pythias, worked the rank of knight upon two candidates, Tuesday night. At close of work a barrel of steamed clams was served to the hungry workers. Prior to working the degree regular lodge officers were elected to fill the chairs for the first half yearly time of 1910.
The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eban Farris of East Oxford, who was taken to the C. M. G. hospital on Sunday Dec. 19, is slowly improving. The child was suffering from a bad case of appendicitis and was operated on at once. The parents did not get much encouragement from the surgeons during the past few days. The present time there is a good chance for her ultimate recovery.
Exercises were observed at the M. E. church, Christmas night. The church was decorated for the occasion and was well filled. The children all did their parts very nicely. The appearance of Santa Claus was the signal for merriment. While Santa sat sleeping each child deposited a gift within his bag and when Santa awoke his pack literally bulged with presents. The singing by the choir was a very pleasing feature on the occasion. At close of program the tree was stripped of its load which went into the hands of bright-eyed and eager children.
